

Exam Check- Writing- What's your opinion?

You can learn a lot about friends and relationships from soap operas.

I think everybody sees it with other eyes, but I think that you can learn and you can't learn from soap operas. to the worst case

I think you can learn from soap operas because friends there hold together when it comes hard of hard and relationships are often nearly the same like in real life. Sometimes they argue and sometimes they hold together, like in real life. in an exaggerated way

But all of this is in some soap operas to hyperbolism represented. The friends there are too closely to be friends or the relationships are too romantic or too stressful to be real. In some soap operas stranger* people help you in <sup>with</sup> your private problems and they don't know the background of this problem. And I don't think that a family gets there child alone with so much many problems like in some soap operas.

Generally in my opinion soap operas aren't a good example for friends or relationships.

Hallo Liebes Enkelkind,

gut argumentiert!

Liebe Grüße Oma

